Justice Sees Israel As Teacher Of Area

After touring the Middle Eastern countries Justice William O. Douglas, of the United States Supreme Court, said at Haifa, Israel, that he had observed what he believed to be an awakening in the form of a political and economic renaissance that, if allowed to prosper, would give new meaning to the entire area.

He said he felt Israel, with her advanced civilization and scientific progress, could well be the nucleus of this potential movement.

Speaking before the Hebrew Institute of Technology, Justice Douglas said he foresaw Israel as the teacher of the Middle East.

"Here in Israel great and stirring experiments are going on," he declared. "New and different projects in economic and social organization are going forward. They have great diversity. And in their diversity lies their great strength."

He said that in Israel "there is rejection of the feudal system that has long held the people of the Middle East in its grip", and "in Israel is a force that can give both direction and content to the social revolution that is on its way."

Justice Douglas had observed "rumblings of discontent, prophesies of tumultuous times to come and beginnings of vast social revolutions" in the Middle East. He felt that these forces of unrest had reached a point where they could not be turned back.

"Rulers will attempt to abolish them by decree," he continued. "Cabinets may offer palliative measures but the voice of these people will not long be stilled."

He declared that "these conditions offer special opportunities [illegible] to educational institutions, especially those such as Hebrew Institute of Technology. "You of Israel know what a people who have desire for an ideal can accomplish," he declared.

"There are now plans to reclaim great areas of land in this region," Justice Douglas continued. "Everywhere one goes in the Middle East he hears of these plans—flood control, drainage of swamps and sour lands and vast irrigation projects that will put unused land into cultivation. These projects are greatly needed. They must go forward

U.S. Rabbi Says Soviet Clears Borders Of Jews

The Soviet Union was accused of uprooting thousands of Russian Jews from the Ukraine and White Russia in "brutal and sudden deportations" to clear its border zones for possible war.

In a letter sent to Trygve Lie, Secretary General of the United Nations, the American Jewish League Against Communism, Inc., charged that the Moscow Government had been dispatching secret police squads into the two republics to round up "the anti-totalitarian Jews," cram them into railroad cars and ship them to forced-labor camps in Archangel and Siberia.

The charge was made by the executive director of the league, Rabbi Benjamin Schultz, who told the House Committee on Un-American Activities recently that there was a deliberate Communist conspiracy to inflame religious and racial minorities against this country. Rabbi Schultz said he was appealing to Mr. Lie "in the name of humanity" to use United Nations facilities to end the "infraction of human rights."

Estimating that the total Jewish population affected by the alleged deportation program had reached 400,000 in the two republics, Rabbi Schultz said that Premier Stalin, like the Czar in 1914, was shifting the Jewish families because he did not trust their loyalty to his "tyrannical regime," and as suspected recalcitrants they must be kept safely in the interior "and not left at the borders when war threatens."

Specifically, on the issues of war preparations, the executive director of the League noted that "White Russia and the Ukraine [illegible] preparing for an international conflict."

There is a second motivation for the anti-Jewish program, Rabbi Schultz contended, and that is the desire of the Kremlin authorities to appease the anti-Semites in an area where "anti-Semitism has always been strong." With the Soviet regime "currying favor" at the expense of the Jews, Rabbi Schultz continued, the Jewish masses are for the first time feeling the effect of Moscow's "new anti-Semitic policy, heretofore confined to the intellectual classes."

Israel Hopes To Reclaim Desert Area

Plans for harnessing water resources on a vast scale to transform much of the parched wastes of Israel's Negeb desert into a livable, crop-bearing region are outlined in detail in a report submitted for study during the first United Nations Scientific Conference on the Conservation and Utilization of Resources.

Writing for the conference, which is opening at Lake Success on August 17, to provide worldwide exchange of views on how to enrich living standards through improved means of exploiting resources, S. Irmay of the Hydraulics Laboratory at Haifa's Hebrew Institute of Technology predicts that that an all-out technical attack on the 3,000,000-acre desert can reclaim almost 600,000 acres for farming. It is to the Negeb that Israeli officials are looking to help solve their immigration problem and to strengthen the new state's agricultural and industrial potentialities, the New York Times reports.

The main obstacles hindering conversion of the sandy stretches into crop lands are lack of water and organic matter, Mr. Irmay notes, but by employing a sprinkling irrigation system the Jordan Valley authority alone can increase its present goal of 80,000 acres to 87,500 acres, enough to support an agricultural population of at least 80,000.

In addition to the proposed enlargement of the valley authority program, the Hebrew Institute expert suggests, another 500,000 acres of land in the Negeb could be enriched again by dry-farming methods, which involve underground water storage, soil conservation and [illegible]

Numerous small-sized and medium-sized reservoirs are necessary to store imported water, the sparse rainfalls and the heavy night dews to supply sudden demand during hot spells, to conserve week-end surpluses and to regulate supply to meet local demands, Mr. Irmay declares.

The Israeli expert, who has traveled widely in the United States to study various conservation and irrigation systems that might be used in the new state, lists three possible approaches to answering the Negeb problem: establishment of the dry-farming system, development of a pipeline system to pump water from the coastal plains to reservoirs built on high places in the parched desert, and creation of the Jordan Valley authority, which envisages the building of twelve dams or reservoirs with an annual storage capacity of almost 300,000,000 cubic meters.

A.J.C. Is In Action Against Negro Ban

The New York State Court of Appeals, in a 4-to-3 decision, ruled that the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company had the right to bar Negroes from its Stuyvesant Town housing project. The high court affirmed lower court rulings dismissing an action brought by three Negro war veterans who had applied for apartments in the housing project.

Also dismissed was a taxpayer suit brought by Shad Polier, vice-president of the American Jewish Congress, and son-in-law of the late Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, seeking to bar discrimination against Negroes in Stuyvesant Town and to restrain the city from granting tax exemption to Stuyvesant Town and the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company unless they ceased their discriminatory policies.

Charles Abrams and Mr. Polier, counsel to the three Negroes who brought suit to compel the Stuyvesant Town Corporation to accept them as tenants, said on behalf of the plaintiffs and the American Jewish Congress, The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and the American Civil Liberties Union, who sponsored the suit, that an application would be made as soon as possible to the United States Supreme Court for a review of the Court of Appeal's decision upholding the Stuyvesant Town Corporation.

"The decision is particularly important," said Abrams and Polier, "because of recent federal legislation providing for federal loans and subsidies of $1,500,000,000 for urban redevelopment. Twenty-five States already have passed enabling legislation, and there are ample indications that such projects [illegible] to all citizens, equally [illegible] appropriate instrument for removing minorities from their homes and creating enforced ghettos."

In the majority opinion, Judge Bruce Bromley asserted that the Legislature "deliberately and intentionally refrained from imposing any restriction upon a redevelopment company in its choice of tenants. Attempts repeatedly made in the Legislature since the law was enacted to alter the policy of the statute in this respect have failed.

"On the other hand," Judge Bromley added, "the Public Housing Law, which is applicable to state-constructed low-cost housing projects, expressly prohibits discrimination. There is no claim that the Legislature refused by amendment to make similar provision in the Redevelopment Companies Law because it thought the statute already barred discrimination, and it is undisputed, therefore, that the legislative intent is clear to leave private enterprise free to select tenants of its own choice."

In their arguments before the high court, the plaintiffs contended that discrimination against Negroes in Stuyvesant Town "is supported and made possible by state action" since construction of the project would not have been possible without exercise of the power of eminent domain, the power to dispose of public property, and tax exemptions, says the New York Times.

To the contention that "discrimination by private agencies is constitutionally forbidden when it is supported, or made possible by state action," Judge Bromley asserted:

"For years it has been unquestioned that the great prohibitions of the Fourteenth Amendment are addressed to that action alone which may fairly be said to be that of the States.

"The State of New York has consciously and deliberately refrained from imposing any requirement of non-discrimination upon respondents as a condition to the granting of aid in the rehabilitation of substandard areas. Furthermore, it has deliberately refrained from declaring by legislation that the opportunity to purchase and lease real property without discrimination is a civil right.

"To say that the aid accorded respondents is nevertheless subject to these requirements, on the ground that helpful cooperation between the state and the respondents transforms the activities of the latter into state action, comes perilously close to asserting that any state assistance to an organization which discriminates necessarily violates the Fourteenth Amendment."

Concurring in the majority opinion were Judges Edmund H. Lewis, Albert Conway and Marvin

Is First Customs Man To Get Award

Herman Lipski, deputy collector of customs in charge of the enforcement division at the Port of New York, became the first member of this agency to receive the Certificates for Meritorious Civilian Service. The award, made by Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder, was presented to Mr. Lipski by Edward H. Foley Jr., Under Secretary of the Treasury, at ceremonies in the rotunda of the Custom House, Bowling Green.

Accepting the award and a sterling silver lapel emblem, the 58-year-old deputy collector, who is rounding out a colorful career of nearly a quarter of a century as a customs officer, paid tribute to the hundreds of men who have worked directly under his supervision.

"If it had not been for their continued loyalty and cooperation," he said, "I would not have received this certificate."

Mr. Foley, addressing 300 friends and associates of Mr. Lipski, said the presentation was being made for Mr. Lipski's "distinguished service, efficiency and outstanding leadership."

The tall, rather heavy set boss of the enforcement division displayed extreme modesty in recounting the details of his long career. He told of beginning as a clerk in 1925 and of his gradual rise.

He completely overlooked the most important incidents of his entire service, namely, the innumerable and valuable interceptions and seizures of narcotics at this port. In the last two years alone

U.S. OFFICIAL CAUTIONS ISRAELI AND ARAB STATES TO WIND UP DISPUTES

The United States cautioned Israel and the Arab states that they can come to terms peacefully if they really want to, and urged them to get together finally and wind up their disputes.

The U.S. government is convinced there is no outstanding issue in Palestine which "is not susceptible of solution by peaceful means," Secretary of State Dean Acheson told his news conference in Washington, as reported by the New York Herald Tribune. He added, in a written statement, that the United States stands ready to extend firm and impartial assistance.

The signing of the Israeli-Syrian armistice at Haifa is further evidence that the contending parties can find ways to reach agreement, the Secretary said. "It is my hope that this development will increase the possibility for the achievement of a final settlement," he added.

Mr. Acheson's statement was made in connection with resumption of activities at Lausanne, Switzerland, by the United Nations Palestine Conciliation Commission, which is seeking to settle boundary and refugee questions now, dividing Israel as opposed to Egypt, the Lebanon, Syria and Trans-Jordan.

When the commission recessed last month, the United States was bringing pressure to bear on Israel to make a major concession on the repatriation of Arab refugees, in order to create the proper climate for a general settlement. This pressure is still continuing, although with perhaps less heat than before. Israel, for one thing, agreed to allow heads of broken Arab families to return to their homes, a concession which will ease the lot of perhaps 25,000 of the 450,000 to 900,000 Arab displaced persons.

The over-all American aim is to restore peace and quiet in the Middle East before it explodes, a subject touched upon by Mr. Acheson. His full statement follows:

"On July 18, 1949, the U.N. Palestine Conciliation Commission, which is charged by the General Assembly under its resolution of December 11, 1948, with facilitating final settlement of all issues outstanding between Israel and the Arab states, reconvened in Lausanne after a brief recess. It will be recalled that the President on July 16 named the Honorable Paul A. Porter as United States Representative on the commission, to replace the Honorable Mark Ethridge who recently resigned that position in order to resume his activities as publisher of "The Louisville Courier-Journal."

"Since the military phases of the

"CANADA UNLIMITED"

Mud! Oxcarts and carriages had a rough time on Canada's first highway from Quebec to Montreal in 1735. In the best dry weather it took four and a half days to complete the trip by carriage!

Road-building was slow until Asa Danforth completed a roadway from Kingston to Ancaster, Ontario, in 1800. Yonge Street in York (Toronto) was commenced about the same time, financed by the Northwest Company. By 1868, after Confederation, most settlements were connected by roads. But they were bumpy and full of holes and impossible in spring. Journeys by stage-coach were hazardous.

Then came the automobile—and the need for better surfaces. One of the first improved highways stretched from Toronto to Hamilton. It opened in 1917.

The Trans-Canada Highway and the Alaska Highway are today's developments that point to great super-highways of Tomorrow. With these highways will come increased industrial development that means great opportunity. Yes—there's room to grow in Canada Unlimited.

R. Dye. Judge Stanley Fuld dissented in an opinion in which Chief Judge John T. Loughran and Charles S. Desmond concurred.

In the minority opinion, Judge Fuld said that "while the Stuyvesant Town housing project was in blueprint and under construction, the public understood, and rightly, that it was an undertaking on which the State and the City of New York had restored the blessings and benefits of governmental power.

"Now that the development is a reality, the public is told in effect that, because Metropolitan and Stuyvesant are private companies, they are not subject to the equal protection clause (of the constitution), and may, if they choose, discriminate against Negroes in selecting tenants," Judge Fuld wrote. "The conclusion strikes me as totally at odds with common understanding. . . ."

Mr. Lipski has supervised the seizure of caches of opium, morphine and heroin with an illicit quick-sale value of $2,500,000.

The largest haul was on the French freighter Bartia on her arrival January 17 last when fifty pounds of opium and fifteen pounds of heroin, valued in illicit markets at $1,000,000, were seized. It was described at the time as the second largest interception of contraband drugs ever made at this port.

On October 1, 1948, Mr. Lipski led an investigating squad that uncovered a cache valued at $700,000 on the Italian liner Vulcania. The narcotics, secreted behind an interior bulkhead, consisted of seventeen pounds and nine ounces of pure heroin.

A previous interception of drugs valued at $500,000 was made in March of the same year on the C-4 type passenger-transport Marine Marlin. A spokesman for the Customs Service pointed out that these shipments would have been worth millions of dollars on the illegal market.

In addition to his activities in preventing the importation of narcotics, Mr. Lipski has also intercepted numerous shipments of sweepstake tickets and, in the prohibition era, alcohol in all its forms.

Born in New York on January 29, 1890, Mr. Lipski entered the service in 1925. He was subsequently promoted to inspector, station inspector and deputy surveyor before being named deputy inspector.

During World War II he was the deputy surveyor in charge of the upper North River area, serving as liaison officer between the collector of customs and the Army and Navy in various important and confidential activities. Later he was sent to Buffalo to reorganize the border patrol service there.

U.S. Fails To Extend Visas To Shanghai Refugees

The U.S. entry permits for some 200 to 300 Jewish refugees from Shanghai will not be extended and the refugees may be forced to leave the United States, according to a letter from Commissioner of Immigration Watson B. Miller, received by the World Jewish Congress office in New York. Many of the refugees face return to Austria, the country of their origin, where their families and friends were murdered.

Commissioner Miller's letter was in reply to a communication sent by Dr. Robert S. Marcus, Political Director of the World Jewish Congress, to Attorney General Tom Clark. Dr. Marcus had pointed out that these persons would be eligible for admission as immigrants under Section 3B (2) of H.R. 4567, a bill introduced by Rep. Celler and passed by the House last month but not yet passed by the Senate. Dr. Marcus had requested that the stay of the Shanghai group be extended by a general administrative ruling until the bill becomes law.

The majority of these refugees, said Dr. Marcus, fled from the Nazi regime which took over Austria. Many have waited nearly ten years to enter the U.S. and a number have relatives here, including wives, husbands and children who are American citizens. Pleading that these unfortunate people may suffer further separation from their loved ones because of the Senate delay in acting on the new DP legislation, Dr. Marcus added that a denial of visa extension would send many of the refugees back to Austria, where their families and homes were destroyed.

Commissioner Miller's letter declared that "the possibility of the enactment into law of the bill now pending cannot form a basis for enlargement of the present authority under which this service must operate in the matter. I regret to inform you, therefore, that unless and until the bill mentioned is enacted into law, there is no way this service may further assist them."

Charge Nazis In Austria Build Back

A group of former high-ranking Nazis is openly operating in Austria to rebuild a political machine, it was revealed in advices from Vienna made public by the World Jewish Congress. Leader of the group, it said, is Dr. Wilhelm Hoettl, a former SS major who was chief of the SD (Nazi security force) in Vienna. Hoettl was an aide of Ernst Kaltenbrunner who was executed as a result of the Nuremberg trials. Kaltenbrunner was Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler's assistant and actually superseded Himmler toward the end of the Hitler regime.

On the basis of the information received from its Vienna sources and from corroboration by American press correspondents, the World Jewish Congress has communicated a request to the U.S. Army's Civil Affairs Division in Washington strongly urging "the American Government, as one of the Allied powers concerned, to take immediate action to remedy this dangerous situation and thus safeguard the world from a revival of Nazism on Austrian soil."

The letter, signed by Dr. Robert S. Marcus, Political Director of the World Jewish Congress, referred to the "authorized" negotiations recently initiated by the Austrian People's Party with former prominent leaders of the Austrian National Socialists in order to enlist their support in the general election scheduled for the Fall. In this connection, the letter points out that Decree Number One of the U.S. Military Government for Austria dissolved the Nazi Party. The People's Party is the largest in Austria and both the Austrian Chancellor and Foreign Minister are members.

Expressing grave concern over the fact that such negotiations by former SS and SA leaders indicate the survival of an organized Nazi network, the letter notes that such a state of affairs is contrary to Article One of the 1945 Austrian constitution which dissolved the Nazi Party and prohibited all activities in its behalf on pain of death and confiscation of offenders' property. The letter further notes that this law bears the signature of Julius Raab, then a member of the Austrian Cabinet, who is now participating in the negotiations with Hoettl's group.

The negotiations culminated on May 28 with a meeting of representatives of the so-called right wing of the people's Party and the ex-Nazis. Besides Hoettl, the latter group included Theo. Wuehrer, former editor-in-chief of a Nazi paper; Dr. Manfred Jasser, the publisher of the now prohibited Alpenlaendisher Heimatruf and present publisher of the neo-Nazi paper Freie Stimmen, and Dr. Taras Borodajkiewicz, apparently a Ukrainian Fascist. The advices declared that the meeting decided to establish a liaison committee to maintain contact between the two groups under the chairmanship of former SA General Viktor Band of the Nazi labor service.

In urging American measures be taken against a Nazi resurgence, the letter recalled the Proclamation to the Austrian people promulgated by the Allied Council for Austria on September 11, 1945, and signed for the U.S. by Gen. Mark Clark, which declared: "The task of the restoration of a free Austrian State is impossible without an active, sustained and determined struggle against the remnants of Nazism and its supporters in all spheres of the political, cultural and economic life of the country. All trace of Nazi and Pan-Germanic influence and all manifestation of German militarism must be uprooted in order to destroy every possibility of a recurrence of German aggression. The Allied Commission for Austria will strive towards the attainment of all these objectives."

Meanwhile, the World Jewish Congress has received a reply from an earlier letter to General Keyes, U.S. High Commissioner for Austria, which called upon him to exercise his right of withholding approval from proposed legislation in the Austrian Parliament which would grant full political rights to important sections of former Nazi Party adherents.

The answering letter, signed by Brig. Gen. Jesmond D. Balmer, U.S. Deputy High Commissioner, declared: "We are very aware of the implications of the proposed amnesty which would be felt in many phases of Austria's economic and political life, and which you have questioned. I have directed that a study be prepared on this subject in order to establish the U.S. position if and when it comes to the attention of the Allied Council, and you can be assured that the arguments presented in your letter will be given thorough consideration during the course of this examination."

The U.S. Army Air Transport Command provided special passage for Rabbi Nathan Witkin, field representative of the National Jewish Welfare Board (JWB) in the Carribean area, from the Panama Canal Zone, where he is stationed, to the Virgin Islands, where the Hebrew Congregation of St. Thomas celebrated an anniversary and ordination service. His participation in the congregation's event was in response to an invitation from Brig. Gen. Edwin L. Sibert, Commanding General U.S. Army Antilles, whose headquarters are at San Juan, Puerto Rico. The celebration of the St. Thomas Hebrew Congregation was in honor of Rabbi Moses de Castro Sasso, noting his 30th anniversary of service to the congregation as reader, minister and cantor. The congregation, whose present synagogue was erected in 1833 and has been in continuous use ever since, was organized in 1796. Rabbi Sasso is a descendant of one of the oldest families in the Virgin Islands. Rabbi Witkin, who is director of the USO-JWB Club in Balboa, and also a part-time chaplain of the Division of Religious Activities of JWB, conducted religious services for Jewish personnel at Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico military installations while on this special mission.

● CANADIAN Jewish Congress: A branch of the Rabbinical Seminaries Moar Hagolah will be established in Montreal with the arrival of 23 students from Rome, Italy, with their lecturers. A second group of 10 are expected later from Italy. Rabbi Ephraim Oshry, principal of the [illegible] Montreal, organized [illegible] Canada with the assistance of the Congress. He was the last surviving Rabbi of the ancient Jewish community of Kovno, Lithuania. He worked in Nazi labour camps until he was freed in 1944 and was named Rabbi of the tiny community which survived the massacres in Lithuania. The Moar Hagolah Seminaries were formed in the concentration camps under the Nazis, where they were established to maintain the religious spirit of Jewish youth in the face of German attempts to demoralize them. After the liberation, the students continued as a group and wandered across Lithuania, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Austria, and Germany to become re-established again in a camp at Velach near Salzburg, Austria. At the end of 1945, the group crossed over to Italy with the assistance of a British Rabbi, Chief of Chaplains, Major M. Berman. The rabbinical seminary was established in the former headquarters of the Gestapo, Villa Sarasella, in Paraquetta, Italy. Since then, branches of the seminary have been established in Tel Aviv and Jerusalem, Israel; and in New York. Chief Rabbi Isaac Halevi Herzog, of Israel, lectured at the seminary during his pastoral visit to Italy in 1946. Rabbi Oshry will continue to supervise studies in the Montreal branch which will be housed on St. Urbain Street. Rabbi M. Y. Wachtfogel and Rabbi P. [illegible] are assisting in the establishment of the seminary.

● ZIONIST Organization: Dr. Mataum Hindes, branch manager of the Anglo-Palestine Bank at Tel Aviv and an official of the Israel of the latter organization at a meeting of the Canadian branch of the latter organization at a Windsor Hotel luncheon. Stressing the role played by the Israel Maritime League in the recent Middle East warfare, Dr. Hindes was especially grateful for the help received from British friends after the evacuation of British troops from Palestine. He said their loyal service had been responsible for the rescue of many Jews. Urging greater encouragement of the Israel Maritime League in Canada, Dr. Hindes declared that because the Israeli Government was so heavily financially burdened, government authorities had decreed that support for the league must come from private interests. Citing the fact that forty per cent of the Israeli maritime personnel was non-Jewish, Dr. Hindes called on league supporters to encourage greater Jewish enlistment for the benefit of the new-born state. Harry Batshaw, K.C., recalled the formation of the Canadian branch. David Goodman, president of the Montreal branch, presided.

if the standard of living is to be raised.

"But they present only a partial picture of problems. If they are used to fasten the hold of a few landlords on the economy, they will bring new misery in their wake. If they are to be used to raise the standard of living of the farming class they must be accompanied by land distribution programs which will insure that benefits go to the workers. They must not be allowed to strengthen the hold of a few economic barons over the people."

Judicious amounts of July sunlight are fine for the baby, but during his sunbaths the infant's eyes should be protected from the direct rays of the sun until he can move himself about easily. Placing him with his feet pointing away from the sun permits his brows and upper lids to shield his eyes. The hood of the carriage should be lined with dull material, preferably dark.

LOAN FUND PROVIDES FOR HOUSING

Housing accommodations have been provided for some 4,500 immigrants absorbed in Israeli collective agricultural settlements through a special revolving fund for building loans, according to an announcement by Julius Simon, president of the Palestine Economic Corporation, co-sponsor of the fund with the Jewish Agency for Palestine. Mr. Simon issued the report, compiled as of June 30, in advance of his departure for Israel to confer with officials there on the corporation's expansion program, including an $800,000 appropriation covering housing and several industrial projects.

The revolving fund, now totalling $450,000, was established in 1935 to help collective settlements build apartments for the immigrants they accepted for work on their farms. By the end of last month, according to Mr. Simon's report, 133 collective settlements in all parts of Israel had obtained housing loans, the amounts depending on the number of immigrants absorbed by each group.

The $450,000 fund total includes $128,000 that has been repaid by settlements and made available to new borrowers since the project was started. The interest rate is five per cent, lowest for long-term building credits in Israel. The fund is administered by the Central Bank for Cooperative Institutions in Palestine, Ltd., a subsidiary of the Palestine Economic Corporation, oldest and largest development company operating in Israel.

The projected $800,000 housing and industrial program will be undertaken on land owned by the Palestine Housing Corporation in the Haifa Bay Region. It is part of an area totalling about 1,300 acres that the Bayside Land Corporation, a P.E.C. subsidiary, has been developing there for 20 years in accordance with a master plan. It erects apartment houses, develops residential and industrial communities, and constructs factory buildings in which space is rented to small businesses. Former Gov. Herbert H. Lehman is honorary chairman of the Palestine Economic Corporation, which participates in many enterprises in Israel, including land development, banking, housing, water and electricity supply, food processing, textiles, potash, chemicals, plastics, and shipping.

Dr. Benjamin Akzin of 101-06 Sixty-seventh Drive, Forest Hills, Queens, New York, has been named Associate Professor of Political Science at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem, it was announced by Dr. Israel S. Wechsler, president of the American Friends of the Hebrew University. The appointment becomes effective October 1, 1949. A specialist in foreign law and international affairs, Dr. Akzin has taught at City College, the Portia Law School and College and the University of Paris. He held the position of political secretary for the American Zionist Emergency Council. His appointment was described by Dr. Wechsler as a part of the university's expansion program for its social science departments "in answer to Israel's urgent call for trained administrators to operate the machinery of government."

Palestine question are now at an end, this government is convinced that there is no issue outstanding between Israel and the Arab states which is not susceptible of solution by peaceful means. In fact, it was to facilitate such solution that the conciliation commission was established by the General Assembly.

"Now that the positions of both parties have been fully defined in previous sessions of the commission, it will materially advance the task of the commission if both the Israeli and the Arab delegations return to Lausanne with full authority to enter into constructive and effective negotiations. It will also greatly facilitate the commission's task if both sides will now extend their exchange of views to all problems covered by the General Assembly resolution of December 11, in order to make possible a simultaneous and balanced approach to the closely related problems of territorial settlement and disposition of the refugees from the hostilities.

"The internal stability and the economy of both the Arab states and Israel have been adversely affected by the recent conflict in Palestine. An early settlement of the outstanding issues will speed the day when both sides are in position to devote their energies and resources to the restoration of conditions of equilibrium and stability. The United States government, through its representative, Mr. Porter, stands ready to extend firm and impartial assistance to both sides to reach a settlement which will speed this objective."

According to Rabbi Schultz, as reported by the New York Times, Russia's secret police arrive suddenly with patrol wagons "and in a few hours Jews are prisoners on trains, bound for forced labor in the frozen wastes around Archangel or in Siberia."

"In towns that the NKVD has not yet reached," according to Rabbi Schultz's letter, "the bazaars are filled with Jews selling all their possessions to the peasants for a song in anticipation of being deported."

"This latest enormity came to light when Jews in Poland tried to maintain their regular correspondence with relatives in the Ukraine and White Russia," the league official said. 'For some weeks all letters have come back marked 'Vozvratit adressat vibil,' meaning 'returned to sender—addressee has left.'"

The league charged also that a purge of intellectual Jews was under way, and it was specifically charged that Itzik Pfeffer, described as a leading Jewish writer, has been missing for months.

Rabbi Schultz said that he was appealing for United Nations action and for cancellation of the deportation orders. Also, he said, he is asking for the return of the Jews to their homes and for the insuring of their civil rights, when and if they were returned.

Officials of the organization were not available for comment. A spokesman for the league said that the appeal was being made on moral grounds rather than legal grounds.

it could have been QUEENSBOROUGH...

About a hundred years ago, a heated discussion raged in B.C. over the name to be given to a new city. There were a number of suggestions, with "Queensborough" heading the list. Queen Victoria herself was asked to settle the argument—and as a result the city of "New Westminster" was put on the map.

Israel, The Suffering Servant

By Dr. I. Epstein, Rabbi, Of London, England

"If there are ranks in suffering, Israel takes precedence." This estimation, made by the great Jewish literary historian, Zunz, about a hundred years ago, has received tragic reinforcement in our own days. The grim and horrifying story of the massacre of six million of our kith and kin, murdered in cold blood, is writ large across the face of contemporary history. But the end of the story is not yet in sight. More pages are still being added almost daily to the sufferings of the broken remnants of Israel, as they struggle with the forces of hatred, disease and death racing to their destruction. While those of them who manage to escape have to encounter the full weight of the forces of an Empire barring their way to the new life that is beckoning to them from their ancestral home.

In the face of this national tragedy without parallel in the annals of mankind, it is natural for the Jew to take up with an aching heart the resounding cry of centuries:—

"Awake, why sleepest Thou, O Lord?
Arouse Thyself, cast not off for ever;
Wherefore hidest Thou Thy face,
And forgettest our affliction and oppression."
(Psalm 1 xiv, 24-5)

An answer to this age-old cry to heaven is indicated in the famous 53rd chapter of the great prophet Isaiah. The key note to this chapter is provided in the introductory exhortation:—

"Arise, awake, put on thy strength, O, Zion.
Put on thy beautiful garments, O, Jerusalem, the holy city
And all the ends of the earth shall see the salvation of the Lord."

In the midst of this scene of universal salvation stands the Suffering Servant, the cynosure of all redeemed nations. The nations at long last recognise the errors of their judgment as to his worth. Hitherto they thought he had suffered because God had forsaken him on account of his sins. Now they come to realise that he had been innocent, and had done no violence. They recognise at long last that all his sorrows were but the work of their own wickedness and iniquity. It was they who had sinned in crushing him, it was they who had committed violence in oppressing him.

"Verily our diseases did he bear, and our pains did he carry;
Whereas we did esteem him stricken, smitten of God and afflicted.
But he was wounded because of our transgressions.
He was crushed because of our iniquities."

The Suffering Servant is indeed the symbol of suffering Israel. The suffering of the Jewish people down all the ages is no mark of their guilt; it is but a reflection on the low moral structure of the outside world. Their miseries throw a grave reproach on other peoples. They cast a lurid light on a civilization which has yet to learn the elementary duties towards the weak and helpless and the ordinary lessons of human decency when these are in conflict with national expediency and imperial interests.

The latest pages in the history of Jewish suffering, written in our own days, form a damning indictment of modern civilization. The suffering people bear no guilt—at least none warranting the cruelties inflicted on them. They suffer for no sins in their hands. They are but victims of a callous civilization which with all its vaunted culture and scientific achievements is barbaric at heart. "Gospellers of Love" attempting to account for the hostility of the non-Jewish world towards the Jew may well point to alleged "Jewish" misdemeanours, and thus assert that "only the Jewish communities themselves can remedy the situation" (Catholic Herald, July 26th, 1946); this does not dispose of the fact that those who throughout the centuries oppressed, crushed and committed violence were not the Jews but the nations of the world. Crime statistics show that of all the nations and races it is the Jews who are least addicted to violence. No other people have endured sorrows and borne affliction for so long and with such patience as the Jews. What is said of the Suffering Servant is true of Israel:

"He was oppressed though he humbled himself, and opened not his mouth;
As a lamb that is led to the slaughter, and as a sheep that before the shearers is dumb."

But if there would be no healing power in humanity, life would end in complete tragedy. Against such a despairing view the prophet proclaims the redemptive quality in suffering. It is in the very nature of things that evil can only be overthrown if some are prepared to endure sufferings at its hands. We have only to think of the suffering of the scientist in his costly battle with disease, and of the heroic reformer in his struggle for social purity. Likewise—on a vaster scale—those whose calling it is to enlist in the age-old conflict of good against evil must be ready for a life of suffering, pain and loss.

Such, in the prophetic conception, is the role of Israel as suffering servant. Israel has been chosen by God to be the people whose world historical mission it is to share by righteousness in knowledge and action in the divine training and healing of the human race. His is no mere passive suffering, but an endurance in the service of a great cause. In suffering from the injustice of the nations, Israel typifies all those who suffer from injustice and cruelty; and by his endurance in faith, loyalty and hope he is contributing to the spiritualisation of the social order and to the final redemption of the whole of humanity.

"For our welfare he was chastised and by his stripes healing is ours."

Despite its unparalleled sufferings of millenia, Israel has never lost faith in the great world-missions assigned to it as the Suffering Servant of the Lord. This is the faith that has given the Jewish people the courage to face and battle with the storms and tribulations of centuries and this is the faith that must mould our attitude towards the circumstances and dangers of our time. Animated by this faith we shall discern in all the bitter struggle and sufferings we have been called upon to pass through but the labour and pain which must be shared by those who would help in the founding of the Kingdom of God among the sons of man. We shall perceive in them the Chebla Mashiach which as foreshown by our sages are inseparable from the process working towards the fulfilment of the Messianic world redemption which will bring Israel and mankind to "the haven of their desire."

This hope is not a kind of escapism, a resignation in the face of overpowering helplessness. Notwithstanding the terrible odds arrayed against us, there are unmistakable signs of a new attitude on the part of nations to the problem which Jewish suffering presents. As a result of the happenings in our times, the world has begun to realise that the cause of the Jew is the cause of humanity and that attack on the Jew must sooner or later resolve itself into an attack on mankind. It has had its eyes opened to the truth uttered by our immortal poet and philosopher, Yehudah Halevi, that "Israel among the nations is like the limbs amid the organs of the body," and that no injury can be inflicted on the law without at the same time injuring the whole body of civilised humanity.

The realisation of this truth, as yet partial and fragmentary, has still to become with the nations a motive of action. There will still be further disillusionments and further crises for the Jew to overcome. But they, too, with the help of the Guardian of Israel will be surmounted. Out of the crucible of suffering, Israel shall emerge ennobled and refined to a new life and new consciousness, and advance towards the fullness of his God-given heritage and towards the destiny assigned to him for his own redemption and the salvation of the whole of humanity.

HUNGRY FOR IRON, the world's steel industry looks to Ungava as the immense new source to supply its increasing needs. There, in the wilderness of rocks and stunted trees stretching north to Ungava Bay, lies one of the richest, purest deposits of iron ore the world has ever known.

The vast area is now being actively explored. Already over 300 million tons of ore have been outlined; camps have arisen; airfields and roads have been built, and the route is being surveyed for a 350-mile railway from the St. Lawrence at Seven Islands. In another section, inland from Havre St. Pierre, what promises to be the world's richest source of titanium has been discovered and is being developed. Our one-time wasteland proves to be a treasure-house.

This new northern expansion is but one of many examples of Canada's tremendous modern development. Never before, here or elsewhere, have there been such opportunities as those which await the energy and initiative of young Canadians in our own country today.

"NEW OPPORTUNITIES..."

"Never before have there been as many new fields and opportunities for young Canadian men and women who, through hard work and persistence, will be able to achieve success and prosperity in the years to come. The continuing development of our industries will be done in large measure in the true spirit of progressiveness of the young Canadian of today", says LUCIEN BOUGIE of Montreal.

From bank clerk to president and owner of the largest baby shoe company in Canada, selling La Parisette shoes through offices and showrooms around the world, Mr. Bougie's career is an example to all ambitious men. His training in banking and accounting has enabled him, through conservative methods of finance, to keep his finger on the pulse of his business, thus avoiding the pitfalls and difficulties attendant upon the establishment and growth of any business venture.
